In the article, Aetna executives Kyu Rhee, MD, Masters of Public Policy, chief medical officer, and Anand Shukla, senior vice president of individual and family plans, answer everything necessary to know about enrolling in health insurance in 2023.

Getting the right health insurance is an important consideration for all Americans. Additionally, open enrollment is the only time Americans can enroll in a health insurance plan on the ACA marketplace unless they experience a qualifying event. Because of this, it's critical to get the right policy during open enrollment.

"Health insurance is a pivotal protection for all Americans," says Nupur Gambhir, managing editor of Insure.com. "But a policy can only be changed from November 1 to January 15 in most states, so consumers should do their due diligence and research which policy on the ACA marketplace is best for them."

Gambhir is available to comment on health insurance open enrollment.
